John I. Davenport, Chief Federal Supervisor of Elections, who gives Democratic New York a sample every year of the practical workings of Federal election laws by locking up hun-dreds of Democrats over election day, has

The Chief Supervisor is toxy, but it is not difficult to see through this scheme. Mr. Davenport does not wish to be hindered in his ork of preparation for the greatest cam paign of his life, as he would be if he attended on the Committee; but in defring the Committee's mandate he places himself in contempt of the flouse of Representatives.

But the House of Representatives.
But the House Committee, he thinks, is powerless to punish him, and President Harrison would not be likely to call a special session of Congress before election for the purpose of punishing him.

"I shall not obey the Fitch Committee's subpens," said John I., grimly, this morning, showing his hands deep into his trousers pockets. "I can't; I'm altogether too busy."

"But that's in contempt of the House of Representatives!" exclaimed an Eveniso World reporter.

Davenport only rolled up his forbidding eyes under his heavy, beetling brows.

"The House, though, is the only power that can punish you for contempt?" suggested the reporter.

There was a grunt in reply, and the diminutive Chief Supervisor's eyes gleamed and his tight little mouth became more compressed tight little mouth became more observed to had President Harrison will not be likely

"Well, hardly." rejoined the iron-visaged Chief Supervisor, suggestively, Congressman Fitch says: "I have personally never been of the opinion that Mr. Davenport would consent to go on the witness stand and submit to an examination in regard to what he did in the election of 1888, the sums of money which he collected, partly from the Government and partly from the stepublican National Committee and from other Republican sources; and the work which he is doing now for the party with the machinery turnished him at the expense of the general public. He will take almost any chance first.

"His main difficulty is an examination into the financial side of his operation.
"Since Mr. Harrison's election he has managed to collect at the Tryasury Department for alleged services, for which he did not dare to attempt to collect a dollar during the four years of Mr. Cleveland's administation, the great sum of $98.178.48.

"This was in addition to his compensation as United States Commissioner and also in ddition to very large sums received by him rom his party associates.
